CANPRINT CONTINUES ITS QUALITY ASSURANCE LEADERSHIP

CanPrint Communications is proud to be awarded environmental management certification to ISO 14001:2004 standards.

Continuing its internal process leadership, CanPrint now boasts certification for ISO 9001: Quality Management Systems and ISO 14001: Environmental Management Systems, as well as FSC and PEFC accreditation.

David Daniel, CanPrint Managing Director and Executive Director of OPUS Print Group, is excited to now have both the 'red tick' for quality and the 'green tick' for environmental assurance.

"It is very important to CanPrint that the highest standards are set considering that we are trusted with some of the Australian Government's most sensitive publications. We have always been recognised for our superior quality and security processes but felt that our passion for sustainability often went unnoticed. This achievement, matched with our FSC and PEFC accreditation, emphasises that whilst we provide the highest level of speed, quality and security to our customers, we are serious about sustainability and our environment," David said.

ISO 14001 is the international standard of audited environmental management systems. It sets the standard for implementation and assurance for the highest environmental standards as well as ensuring that there is compliance with all environmental regulations. Achieving certification involves a rigorous process that closely examines all levels of the organisation.
